Self-awareness is the capacity for introspection and the ability to recognize oneself as an individual separate from the environment and other individuals. It is not to be confused with consciousness in the sense of qualia. While consciousness is being aware of one's environment and body and lifestyle, self-awareness is the recognition of that awareness.

In reviewing the three definitions of situational awareness proffered earlier, each can be explained with reference to Fig. 1. Endsley's (1988) definition emphasises mainly perception and understanding of the world with some aspect of future projection. By contrast, Smith and Hancock (1998) define situational awareness mainly in terms of the interaction between the person and the world, thus ...
